PRELIMINARY INSTRUCTIONS

Members of the jury:

Now that you have been sworn, I will give you some preliminary instructions to guide you in your participation in the trial.

Duty of Jury

It will be your duty to find from the evidence what the facts are. You, and you alone, are the judges of the facts. You will then have to apply to those facts the law as I will give it to you. You must follow that law whether you agree with it or not.

Nothing I may say or do during the course of the trial is intended to indicate nor should be taken by you as indicating what your verdict should be.

Evidence

The evidence from which you will find the facts will consist of the testimony of witnesses, documents, and other things received into the record as exhibits, and any facts the lawyers agree or stipulate to or that the court may instruct you to find.

The following things are not evidence and must not be considered by you:

1. Statements, arguments, and questions by lawyers are not evidence.
2. Objections to questions are not evidence. Lawyers have an obligation to their clients to make an objection when they believe evidence being offered is improper under the rules of evidence. You should not be influenced by the objection or by my ruling on it. If the objection is sustained, ignore the question. If it is overruled, treat the answer like any other. If I instruct you that some item of evidence is received for a limited purpose only, you must follow that instruction.

3. Testimony that I have excluded or told you to disregard is not evidence and must not be considered.

4. Anything you may have seen or heard outside the courtroom is not evidence and must be disregarded. You are to decide the case solely on the evidence presented here in the courtroom.

There are two kinds of evidence: direct and circumstantial. Direct evidence is direct proof of a fact, such as testimony of an eyewitness. Circumstantial evidence is proof of facts from which you may infer or conclude that other facts exist. I will give you further instructions on these as well as other matters at the end of the case, but have in mind that you may consider both kinds of evidence.

It will be up to you to decide which witnesses to believe, which witnesses not to believe, and how much of any witness' testimony to accept or reject. I will give you some guidelines for determining the credibility of witnesses at the end of the case.

Rules for Criminal Cases

As you know, this is a criminal case. There are three basic rules about a criminal case that you must keep in mind.

First, a defendant is presumed innocent unless proven guilty. The indictment against the defendant brought by the government is only an accusation, nothing more. It is not proof of guilt or anything else. The defendant therefore starts out with a clean slate.

Second, the burden of proof is on the government throughout the case. A defendant does not have the burden of proving his innocence, or to present any evidence, or to testify. Since the defendant has the right to remain silent, the law prohibits you in arriving at your verdict from considering that the defendant may not have testified.

Third, in order to prove the defendant guilty, the government must prove his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. I will give you further instructions on this point later, but bear in mind that in this respect a criminal case is different from a civil case.

Summary of Applicable Law

In this case the defendant is charged with being a person prohibited from possessing a firearm or ammunition who was in possession of a firearm and ammunition. I will give you detailed instructions on the law at the end of the case, and those instructions will control your deliberations and decision. But in order to help you follow the evidence I will now give you a brief summary of the elements of the offense that the government must prove to make its case.

In Count I, the Indictment charges that the defendant knowingly possessed in and affecting commerce a firearm, specifically, a Taurus model PT-40, .40 caliber pistol, serial number 09833, and ammunition, specifically rounds of .40 caliber ammunition; and that he did so after having been convicted on or about November 12, 2002, of a crime punishable by imprisonment exceeding one year, in the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, in violation of title 18 United States Code, Sections 922(g)(1) and 924(a)(2).

The essential elements of this offense, each of which the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt are:

FIRST: That, prior to the date of the offense alleged in the Indictment, the defendant had been convicted in any court of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year;

SECOND: That the defendant knowingly possessed the firearm or the ammunition charged in the Indictment;

THIRD: The possession of the firearm or the ammunition was in or affecting interstate commerce.

Conduct of the Jury

Now, a few words about your conduct as jurors.

First, I instruct you that during the trial you are not to discuss the case with anyone or permit anyone to discuss it with you. Until you retire to the jury room at the end of the case to deliberate on your verdict, you simply are not to talk about this case, even with each other. If anyone should try to talk to you about it, bring it to the court's attention promptly.

Second, do not read or listen to anything touching on this case in any way.

Third, do not try to do any research or make any investigation about the case on your own.

Finally, do not form any conclusion about the matters in issue until all the evidence is in. Keep an open mind until you start your deliberations at the end of the case.

If you wish, you may take notes. If you do take notes, leave them in the jury room when you leave at night. And remember that they are for your own personal use -- they are not to be given or read to anyone else.

Course of the Trial

The trial will now begin. First, the prosecutor will make an opening statement, which is simply an outline to help you understand the evidence as it comes in. Next, the defendant's attorney may, but does not have to make an opening statement. Opening statements are neither evidence nor arguments.

The government will then present its witnesses and counsel for defendant may cross-examine them. Following the government's case, the defendant may, if he wishes, present witnesses whom the government may cross-examine. After all the evidence is in, the attorneys will present their closing arguments to summarize and interpret the evidence for you, and the court will instruct you on the law. After that, you will retire to deliberate on your verdict.

GENERAL

INTRODUCTION

Members of the jury, now it is time for me to instruct you about the law that you must follow in deciding this case.

I will start by explaining your duties and the general rules that apply in every criminal case.

Then I will explain the elements, or parts, of the crime that the defendant is accused of committing.

Then I will explain some rules that you must use in evaluating particular testimony and evidence.

And last, I will explain the rules that you must follow during your deliberations in the jury room, and the possible verdicts that you may return.

Please listen very carefully to everything I say.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.01 (citation omitted).

JURORS' DUTIES

You have two main duties as jurors. The first one is to decide what the facts are from the evidence that you saw and heard here in court. Deciding what the facts are is your job, not mine, and nothing that I have said or done during this trial was meant to influence your decision about the facts in any way.

Your second duty is to take the law that I give you, apply it to the facts, and decide if the Government has proved the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. It is my job to instruct you about the law, and you are bound by the oath that you took at the beginning of the trial to follow the instructions that I give you, even if you personally disagree with them. This includes the instructions that I gave you before and during the trial, and these instructions. All the instructions are important, and you should consider them together as a whole.

The lawyers may have talked about the law during their arguments. But if what they said is different from what I say, you must follow what I say. What I say about the law controls.

Perform these duties fairly. Do not let any bias, sympathy or prejudice that you may feel toward one side or the other influence your decision in any way.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.02 (citation omitted).

PRESUMPTION OF INNOCENCE
BURDEN OF PROOF
REASONABLE DOUBT

As you know, the defendant has pleaded not guilty to the crime charged against him in the Indictment. The Indictment is not any evidence at all of guilt. It is just the formal way that the Government tells the defendant what crime he is accused of committing. It does not even raise any suspicion of guilt.

Instead, a defendant starts the trial with a clean slate, with no evidence at all against him, and the law presumes that he is innocent. This presumption of innocence stays with him unless the Government presents evidence here in court that overcomes the presumption, and convinces you beyond a reasonable doubt that he is guilty.

This means that the defendant has no obligation to present any evidence at all, or to prove to you in any way that he is innocent. It is up to the Government to prove that he is guilty, and this burden stays on the Government from start to finish. You must find the defendant not guilty unless the Government convinces you beyond a reasonable doubt that he is guilty.

The Government must prove every element of the crime charged beyond a reasonable doubt. Proof beyond a reasonable doubt does not mean proof beyond all possible doubt. Possible doubts or doubts based purely on speculation are not reasonable doubts. A reasonable doubt is a doubt based on reason and common sense. It may arise from the evidence, the lack of evidence, or the nature of the evidence.

Proof beyond a reasonable doubt means proof which is so convincing that you would not hesitate to rely and act on it in making the most important decisions in your own lives. If you are convinced that the Government has proved the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, say so by returning a guilty verdict. If you are not convinced, say so by returning a not guilty verdict.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.03 (citation omitted).

EVIDENCE DEFINED

You must make your decision based only on the evidence that you saw and heard here in court. Do not let rumors, suspicions, or anything else that you may have seen or heard outside of court influence your decision in any way.

The evidence in this case includes only what the witnesses said while they were testifying under oath; the exhibits that I allowed into evidence; the stipulations that the lawyers agreed to; and the facts that I have judicially noticed.

Nothing else is evidence. The lawyers' statements and arguments are not evidence. Their questions and objections are not evidence. My legal rulings are not evidence. And my comments and questions are not evidence.

In addition, the Indictment is not evidence. It is merely the formal manner of accusing a person of a crime in order to bring him to trial. You must not consider the Indictment as any evidence of the guilt of the defendant, or draw any inference of guilt from it.

During the trial I did not let you hear the answers to some of the questions that the lawyers asked. I also ruled that you could not see some of the exhibits that the lawyers wanted you to see. And sometimes I ordered you to disregard things that you saw or heard, or I struck things from the record. You must completely ignore all of these things. Do not even think about them. Do not speculate about what a witness might have said or what an exhibit might have shown. These things are not evidence, and you are bound by your oath not to let them influence your decision in any way.

Make your decision based only on the evidence, as I have defined it here, and nothing else.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.04 (citation omitted).

CONSIDERATION OF EVIDENCE

You should use your common sense in weighing the evidence. Consider it in light of your everyday experience with people and events, and give it whatever weight you believe it deserves. If your experience tells you that certain evidence reasonably leads to a conclusion, you are free to reach that conclusion.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.05 (citation omitted).

DIRECT AND CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE

Now, some of you may have heard the terms “direct evidence” and “circumstantial evidence.”

Direct evidence is simply evidence like the testimony of an eyewitness which, if you believe it, directly proves a fact. If a witness testified that she saw it raining outside, and you believed her, that would be direct evidence that it was raining.

Circumstantial evidence is simply a chain of circumstances that indirectly proves a fact. If someone walked into the courtroom wearing a raincoat covered with drops of water and carrying a wet umbrella, that would be circumstantial evidence from which you could conclude that it was raining.

It is your job to decide how much weight to give the direct and circumstantial evidence. The law makes no distinction between the weight that you should give to either one, nor does it say that one is any better evidence than the other. You should consider all the evidence, both direct and circumstantial, and give it whatever weight you believe it deserves.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 1.06 (citation omitted).

CREDIBILITY OF WITNESSES

You have seen the witnesses and have heard them testify. It is your duty to reconcile all the testimony of all the witnesses, both on direct and on cross-examination, with all of the facts, if you are able to do so. If, after weighing the matter carefully, and viewing it in light of your best judgment as reasonable women and men, you find you are unable to reconcile a conflict in the testimony, then it is for you to say who has been mistaken, who has told the truth, who has testified falsely, and whom you will believe. In other words, it is for you to determine whether the Government has proved beyond a reasonable doubt whether the defendant committed the offense charged in the Indictment, and, in making that determination, it is for you to decide which testimony is most worthy of belief, and you may disregard any testimony which cannot be reasonably and fairly reconciled with testimony you believe.

OPINION EVIDENCE -- THE EXPERT WITNESS

The rules of evidence ordinarily do not permit witnesses to testify as to their own opinions or their own conclusions about important questions in a trial. An exception to this rule exists as to those witnesses who are described as "expert witnesses." An "expert witness" is someone who, by education or by experience, may have become knowledgeable in some technical, scientific, or very specialized area. If such knowledge or experience may be of assistance to you in understanding some of the evidence or in determining a fact, an "expert witness" in that area may state an opinion as to a matter in which he claims to be an expert.

Here, Special Agent _____ testified as an expert in this case. You should consider the expert opinion received in evidence in this case and give it such weight as you may think it deserves. You should consider the testimony of an expert witness just as you consider other evidence in this case. If you should decide that the opinion of an expert witness is not based upon sufficient education or experience, or if you should conclude that the reasons given in support of the opinion are not sound, or if you should conclude that the opinion is outweighed by other evidence, you may disregard the opinion in part or in its entirety.

As I have told you several times, you -- the jury -- are the sole judges of the facts of this case.

1A O'Malley, Grenig & Lee, Federal Jury Practice and Instructions, § 14.01 (5th ed. 2000).

IF REQUESTED BY EITHER PARTY:

DEFENDANT'S ELECTION NOT TO TESTIFY

Each defendant has an absolute right not to testify or present evidence. The fact that he did not testify or present any evidence cannot be considered by you in any way. Do not even discuss it in your deliberations.

Remember that it is up to the Government to prove the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. It is not up to the defendant to prove that he is innocent.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions §7.02A.

IF REQUESTED BY EITHER PARTY:

DEFENDANT'S TESTIMONY

You have heard the defendant testify. Earlier, I talked to you about the "credibility" or the "believability" of the witnesses. And I suggested some things for you to consider in evaluating each witness's testimony.

You should consider those same things in evaluating the defendant's testimony.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions §7.02B.

TESTIMONY OF LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS

You have heard the testimony of law enforcement officers, including ATF agents and New Castle County police officers. The fact that a witness may be employed as a law enforcement officer does not mean that his testimony is necessarily deserving of more or less consideration, or greater or lesser weight than that of any other witness.

It is your decision, after reviewing all the evidence, whether to accept the testimony of a law enforcement witness and whether to give that testimony whatever weight, if any, you find it deserves.

1 L. Sand, et al., Modern Federal Jury Instructions, § 7-16 (adapted).

NATURE OF THE CHARGES

INTRODUCTION

That concludes the part of my instructions explaining your duties and the general rules that apply in every criminal case. In a moment, I will explain the elements of the crime that the defendant is accused of committing.

But before I do that, I want to emphasize that the defendant is only on trial for the particular crime charged in the Indictment. Your job is limited to deciding whether the Government has proved the particular crime charged was committed by the defendant.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions § 2.01 (citation omitted).

POSSESSION OF FIREARM OR AMMUNITION BY A FELON ELEMENTS OF THE OFFENSE

Count I of the Indictment charges the defendant with Possession of a Firearm and Ammunition by a Convicted Felon. For you to find the defendant guilty of this charge, the Government must prove each of the following elements beyond a reasonable doubt:

- FIRST: That, prior to the date of the offense alleged in the Indictment, the defendant had been convicted in any court of a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year;
- SECOND: That the defendant knowingly possessed the firearm charged in the Indictment, that is, a Taurus model PT-40 .40 caliber pistol, serial number 09833 or, that he knowingly possessed the ammunition charged in the indictment, that is, rounds of .40 caliber ammunition; and
- THIRD: That the firearm or the ammunition had passed in interstate commerce.

See United States v. Dodd, 225 F.3d 340, 344 (3d Cir. 2000).

UNANIMITY

The Indictment alleges possession of a firearm and possession of ammunition. The Government only has to prove possession of one or the other, but you must be unanimous that he possessed either the firearm or the ammunition.

STIPULATION REGARDING DEFENDANT'S PRIOR FELONY CONVICTION

With regard to the first element, the existence of a prior felony conviction, the parties have stipulated that the defendant was convicted of a crime in the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, and that this crime was a felony, punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year. The parties also have stipulated that this felony conviction occurred prior to the time that the defendant is alleged to have possessed the firearm and ammunition charged in the Indictment.

I instruct you, in this connection, that the prior conviction that is an element of the charge here, and is not disputed, is only to be considered by you for the fact that it exists, and for nothing else. You are not to consider it for any other purpose, nor may you speculate as to what it was for.

See 2 L. Sand, et al., Modern Federal Jury Instructions, § 35-48.

"FIREARM" - DEFINED

The term "firearm" means any weapon which will, or is designed to, expel a projectile by the action of an explosive.

See 18 U.S.C. § 921(a)(3)(A) (in pertinent part).

"AMMUNITION" - DEFINED

The term "ammunition" means ammunition or cartridge cases, primers, bullets, or propellant powder designed for use in any firearm.

See 18 U.S.C. § 921(a)(17)(A).

ACTUAL AND CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION

Next, I want to explain something about possession. The Government does not necessarily have to prove that the defendant physically possessed the firearm or the ammunition charged in the Indictment for you to find him guilty of this crime. The law recognizes two kinds of possession - actual possession and constructive possession. Either one of these, if proved by the Government, is enough to convict.

To establish actual possession, the Government must prove that the defendant had direct, physical control over the firearm or the ammunition, and knew that he had control of it.

To establish constructive possession, the Government must prove that the defendant had the right to exercise physical control over the firearm or the ammunition, and knew that he had this right, and that he intended to exercise physical control over it at some time, either directly or through other persons.

For example, if you left something with a friend intending to come back later and pick it up, or intending to send someone else to pick it up for you, you would have constructive possession of it while it was in the actual possession of your friend.

The Government does not have to prove that the defendant was the only one who had possession of the firearm or the ammunition. Two or more people can together share actual or constructive possession over property. And if they do, both are considered to have possession as far as the law is concerned.

But understand that just being present where something is located does not equal possession. The Government must prove that the defendant had actual or constructive possession of the firearm or the ammunition, and knew that he did, for you to find him guilty of this crime.

You should also understand that ownership and possession are two distinct concepts, and that the Government does not have to prove that the defendant owned the firearm or the ammunition. The Government only has to prove that the defendant had actual or constructive possession, as I have explained those terms for you here.

This, of course, is all for you to decide.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Jury Instruction §§ 2.10, 2.11 (modified to add ownership versus possession concept).

“KNOWINGLY” - DEFINED

The Government must prove that the defendant “knowingly” possessed the firearm or the ammunition charged in the Indictment. This means that the defendant possessed the firearm or the ammunition purposely and voluntarily, and not by accident or mistake. It also means that he knew that the firearm was a firearm, and that the ammunition was ammunition, as we commonly use the word. However, the Government is not required to prove that the defendant knew that he was breaking the law by possessing the firearm or the ammunition, or that the defendant possessed the firearm or the ammunition with the intent to cause harm.

See 2 L. Sand, et al., Modern Federal Jury Instructions, § 35-49; United States v. Dodd, 225 F.3d 340, 344 (3d Cir. 2000).

INFERRING REQUIRED MENTAL STATE

Next, I want to explain something about proving a defendant's state of mind.

Ordinarily, there is no way that a defendant's state of mind can be proved directly, because no one can read another person's mind and tell what that person is thinking.

But a defendant's state of mind can be proved indirectly from the surrounding circumstances. This includes things like what the defendant said, what the defendant did, how the defendant acted, and any other facts or circumstances in evidence that show what was in the defendant's mind.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions §2.08.

“INTERSTATE COMMERCE” - DEFINED

To satisfy the third element, the Government must prove that at some point prior to the defendant's possession of the firearm or the ammunition charged in the Indictment, the firearm or the ammunition had traveled in interstate commerce. It is sufficient for the Government to satisfy this element by proving that at any time prior to the date charged in the Indictment, the firearm or the ammunition crossed a state line. It is not necessary that the Government prove that the defendant himself carried the firearm or the ammunition across a state line, nor must the Government prove who carried the firearm or the ammunition or how they were transported. It is also not necessary for the Government to prove that the defendant knew that the firearm or the ammunition previously had traveled through interstate commerce.

Proof that the firearm and the ammunition were manufactured outside of the State of Delaware and traveled into the State of Delaware is sufficient to satisfy this element.

See 2 L. Sand, et al., Modern Federal Jury Instructions, § 35-50; Scarborough v. United States, 431 U.S. 563, 567 (1977); United States v. Singletary, 268 F.3d 196, 198, 200 (3d Cir. 2001).

“ON OR ABOUT” -- PROOF OF

You will note the Indictment charges that the offense was committed on “on or about” October 27, 2005. The Government does not have to prove with certainty that the alleged crime occurred on that date. It is sufficient if the evidence in the case establishes beyond a reasonable doubt that the crime was committed on a date reasonably near the date alleged.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions §2.08.

DELIBERATIONS AND VERDICT

INTRODUCTION

That concludes the part of my instructions explaining the rules for considering some of the testimony and evidence. Now let me finish up by explaining some things about your deliberations in the jury room, and your possible verdicts.

Once you start deliberating, do not talk to the jury officer, or to me, or to anyone else except each other about the case. If you have any questions or messages, you must write them down on a piece of paper, sign them, and then give them to the jury officer. The officer will give them to me, and I will respond as soon as I can. I may have to talk to the lawyers about what you have asked, so it may take me some time to get back to you. Any questions or messages normally should be sent to me through your foreperson.

One more thing about messages. Do not ever write down or tell anyone how you stand on your votes. For example, do not write down or tell anyone that you are split 6-6, or 8-4, or whatever your vote happens to be. That should stay secret until you are finished.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 8.01 (citation omitted).

UNANIMOUS VERDICT

Your verdict, whether it is guilty or not guilty, must be unanimous.

To find the defendant guilty, every one of you must agree that the Government has overcome the presumption of innocence with evidence that proves his guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

To find the defendant not guilty, every one of you must agree that the Government has failed to convince you beyond a reasonable doubt.

Either way, guilty or not guilty, your verdict must be unanimous.

After you have reached unanimous agreement as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant with respect to the charge in the Indictment, you then return to the courtroom. Your foreperson, who by custom of this Court is the No. 1 juror, _____, in answer to a question asked by the Clerk, will give your verdict of either "Not Guilty" or "Guilty" with respect to the charge in the Indictment.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 8.03A (adapted) (citation omitted).

DUTY TO DELIBERATE

Now that all the evidence is in and the arguments are completed, you are free to talk about the case in the jury room. In fact, it is your duty to talk with each other about the evidence, and to make every reasonable effort you can to reach unanimous agreement. Talk with each other, listen carefully and respectfully to each other's views, and keep an open mind as you listen to what your fellow jurors have to say. Try your best to work out your differences. Do not hesitate to change your mind if you are convinced that other jurors are right and that your original position was wrong.

But do not ever change your mind just because other jurors see things differently, or just to get the case over with. In the end, your vote must be exactly that--your own vote. It is important for you to reach unanimous agreement, but only if you can do so honestly and in good conscience.

No one will be allowed to hear your discussions in the jury room, and no record will be made of what you say. So you should all feel free to speak your minds.

Listen carefully to what the other jurors have to say, and then decide for yourself if the Government has proved the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions, § 8.04 (citation omitted).

PUNISHMENT

If you decide that the Government has proved the defendant guilty, then it will be my job to decide what the appropriate punishment should be.

Deciding what the punishment should be is my job, not yours. It would violate your oaths as jurors to even consider the possible punishment in deciding your verdict.

Your job is to look at the evidence and decide if the Government has proved the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions § 8.05 (citation omitted).

VERDICT FORM

I have prepared a verdict form that you should use to record your verdict. The form will be given to the foreperson.

If you decided that the Government has proved the charge against the defendant beyond a reasonable doubt, say so by having your foreperson mark the appropriate place on the form. If you decide that the Government has not proved the charge against him beyond a reasonable doubt, say so by having your foreperson make the appropriate place on the form. Each of you should then sign the form, and the foreperson should date it beneath your signatures and return it to me in court.

See Sixth Circuit Pattern Criminal Jury Instructions § 8.06 (citation omitted).
